ELKS SOCIAL SESSION.

Happy Hours Hop -Marriages, Receptions, Balls, Parties and Other Social News and Gossip in Upper Circles.

The Elks' Social.

The most brilliant social event of the week was that given by the Eiks at their spacious and palatial quarters on Wednesday evening. The members had modestly dubbed it the Indies' social session, although in reality it was given by the gentlemen to the ladies, and not by the ladies to the gentlemen, as it would appear. A large number of the fair sex were in attendance, resplendent in beau-tiful toilets, while many of Omaha's leading professional and mercantile lights were pres-ent and enjoyed the delightful occasion. W. C. Gregory presided as master of ceremonies in his usual felicitous manner. The early part of the evening was devoted to a musical programme of unusual merit, it being opened with a selection by the Mandolin club. The Madrigal club, consisting of Mrs. J. W. Cot-ton, Miss Pennell and Messrs. Pennell and Wilking were next anounced and their an professional and mercantile lights were pres ton, Miss Fennell and Messis, I chool and Wilkins, were next announced, and their ap-pearance brought out a round of appliause. Their beautiful rendition of "Softly Falls the Shades of Evening" brought out a hearty encore. Miss Pennell followed with a sweet contraits sole rendered in a most pleasing manner. A piane sole by Prof. Butler and another song by the Madrigat club followed, when Mr. Jules Lombard, the famous and patriarchal campaign singer was announced, and appropriate the contract of the contract peared with a bass solo rendered in a pow-erful and deep voice, that has lost but little erful and deep voice, that has lost but little by age. He was warmly encored. Selections followed by the Mandolin club, Mrs.
Cotton and the Madrigal club, after which the rooms were cleared of the chairs and dancing commenced. Those who did not care to mingle in the dances entertained each other at cards. Most elegant refreshments were served throughout the evening in the dining hall.

The newly elected officers of Arapahoe lodge No. 104 were installed as follows: E. S. Child, master workman; W. N. Bowman, foreman; Carl Roth, overseer; F. A. Albee, recorder; J. W. Evans, receiver; J. D. Beach, financier; Charles Pratt, guide; J. Wagner, inside watchman; R. H. Bellamy outside watchman. The lodge is starting out with its best foot foremost and is greatly encouraged with prospects of increase in numbers and usefulness.

G. A. R. The officers of Gould post No. 216, at Republican City; of Belmont post No. 176, at Wakefield, and of Mission Ridge post No. 149, at Greenwood, were installed last week. There was an enjoyable dinner and campfire at Dawson.

On Washington's birthday the post Harvard will dance and sup.

County Superin tendent Bruner is today one of the happi in Omaha, Last ebrated the forty. eighth anniversary of his birth, and St. John's lodge of Freemasons, to which he belongs, gave him a great surprise. It came in the shape of a past master's jewel, studded with diamonds, richly carved and appropriately engraved. H. W. Keysor made the presentation speech Worshipful Master: I desire to say a few words touching a matter that hes close to the hearts of us all. In doing so I shall address myself directly to a member of this lodge, who is well known in every Masonic home and mystic circle in our growing city. He is a pillar in our fraternity in the state of Nebraska: a pillar that unites in itself all the excellencies and harmonies of the orders of architecture which he often eloquently de-scribes in our middle chamber work; for he is doric in the strength and ability with which he labors among us; Ionic, in the gracefulness and ease of the performance of his duties, and Corinthian, in the beauty of his devotion to Masonry and in his exempli fication of his many virtues.

Brother J. B. Bruner, I refer to you. If we are correctly informed, you will soon cele-brate the forty-eighth anniversary of your birth. For the earnest, faithful man a birth day is a perion for pleasant retrospection and personal joy; for his friends, it is an occasion for congratulations and expressions of respect. You have had many such many an-niversaries, and many of them have found you an active mason and an ardent member of our beloved ledge. For four years you presided over it with the punctuality, precision and dignity of the true worshipful master. master. You are now serving in a minor of fice in the same spirit and with the same satisfaction to your lodge. As entered ap-prentices we have had your aid and encouragement; as fellow-crafts we have re-ceived your counsel and admonitions; and as master masons we have enjoyed your friendship and brotherly love. It is, there-fore, but natural that we should seek a channel through which to express our gratitude and to tender our best wishes on this happy anniversary. And this we now do in a way that we trust we can never forget and that yon will always remember with gladness. Here in open lodge, at the conclusion of our labor in one of the noblest of tasks, the rais ing of a master mason. I have the pleasure of adorning you with this handsome badge. I comes to you from the friendly hands and warm hearts of your brothers in St. John's lodge, not simply as a reward for your aslodge, not simply as a reward for your assistance and services, but rather as an enduring manifestation of their esteem, and of their appreciation of your devotion to the principles of their order. Wear it, my brother, on all fitting occasions, for nothing more becomes a man than the tokens of the aprobation of those who knew him. Wear it, my brother, for our sake; and this you can do, I assure you, with the proud consciousness that no man on earth wears a badge more honorable, or more significant, than this radiant jewel. It is masonic in its form and almost divine in its masonic in its form and almost divine in its expression of brotherly love. We will join in tendering our hearty congratulations, trusting that the God of all true masons will bless you and grant you many a year for the enjoyment of your order, and of the fruits of a full masonic life.

Modern Woodmen. There was a regular meeting Wednesday night which developed features of unusual interest to the members. A 'number of the sturdy wielders of the fraternal and social axe spoke of methods calcu-lated to clear away the jungle of ignorance, superstition and prejudice that has grown up around the natural fraternal and social impulse of man. Doubtless the utterances gave impetus of weight to the labors of the order. Messrs. Lydick and appropriate selections that were well received.

At the conclusion of the session a compan y of Bluffites appeared, and Grand Pasha Jim Keith, of Council Bluffs, took the chair and instituted a rank of the Prince of the and instituted a rank of the Prince of the Orient. Neighbor Cole took a degree with enjoyment that was only surpassed by the sense of the humorous situation developed among the assembled princes.

The following is a list of the officers of the new lodge: J. H. McCoy, grand padisher; H. W. Spoerri, grand pasha; Dr. L. A. Merriam, grand vizier; J. T. Yates, grand prophet; G. T. Lydick, grand herald; George S. Mack, grand wardsman; George S. Cott, grand videtta; C. M. Bachman, grand secretary; M. E. Kerr, grand treasurer; J. H. Kobeleno, grand masterpicce manipulator. The ball and banquet of Hazel Camp No. 120 of Council Bluffs on Tuesday will attract a large attendance from Omaha. The Omaha contingent will appear at the Miliard corner at 8:30 p. m. sharp and take the motor. The affair promises a pleasant evening. At a meeting of Red Cloud Camp No. 608, the following officers were elected and installed for the ensuing year: J. L. Miller, V. C.; D. F. Trunkey, adviser; L. H. Wal lace, banker; C. F. Cather, clerk; Charles mer, escort; Mason Fisher, watehman;

G. H. Whitson, sentry. Philadelphia Ledger.

The longest story shaped by lips left something still untold-A bigger measure than it gives Life's silent side doth hold; Disjointed actions men may take and call it When writing a biography-'tis all that we require; For that one does not live who could man's inner life declare, Nor ever lived that one who would his quiv-'ring heart lay bare! We cannot count our own Life's pulse, much less our brothers' then, Nor see the heart's true blood course 'neath the outward seeming's vein! We cannot see inside-man's actions only form a wall About his inner life; 'tis when his word best covers all Than silence could, that he allows his trembling lips to speak —

He laughs to hide from us the fact that 'neath his heart doth break! Yet shall we say each laugh we hear some secret tear enfolds!

No: this but shows the self same act such different meaning holds! A sigh speaks not alway of Life's sorrow or Hope's defeat, And tears are words which tell the tale of joy or grief complete.
